COLHOUN OF CARRICKBALLYDOEY.

MAJOR CHARLES KING COLHOUN, of Carrickballydoey, co. Donegal, late Major (84th) York and Lancaster Regt., b. 12 Oct. 1858.

Lineage.—The Laird of Luss (Alexander Colquhoun) on the Plantation of Ulster had a grant in the co. of Donegal of 1,000 acres called Corkagh. He appears to have been accompanied to Ireland by several members of his clan. He was made a denizen of Ireland by the name of Sir Alexander Colquhoun of Corkagh in the co. of Donegal, Knt. by Patent dated 20 May 15 JAC. I., which also includes the name of Daniel Colquhoun of Corkie, co. Donegal. In the same year the Laird of Luss was succeeded by his son Sir John Colquhoun of Luss, created a baronet in 1695.

His Patent dated 14 July, 1695, another member of the family, Robert Colquhoun (probably Robert Colquhoun, afterwards of Camstradden) was granted letters of denization together with Corkagh, which was then created the Manor of Corkagh, with the usual manorial rights. Part of the lands were subsequently acquired by Humphrey and Robert Galbraith, who by deed dated 1 May, 1664, conveyed, among other denominations of land, the quarter of Corkagh and Lebuidish, and the town and lands of Carrickballydoey alias Carrickballyduff to Sir John Calhowne, Junior, Knt. and Bart. The last-mentioned lands have been for over two centuries in the possession of the present Colhoun family, who would appear to descend from some of the junior branches who settled in Ireland.

Lineage.—This ancient family, formerly called Unak or de Unak, was settled near Voughal, in the South of Ireland, about the close of the 13th century. Tradition relates that they were originally a sept or clan of the Geraldines of Desmond, and that the first of the name was a certain FitzGerald, who, having undertaken and successfully performed a deed of great daring, upon which no one else had been willing to venture, was afterwards surnamed "Unicus" (the only one); which honourable patronymic his descendants retained, adopting as their motto the words "Unicus est." Certain branches, however, such as the families UNIACKE of Woodhouse (now extinct in the male line), UNIACKE FITZGERALD of Corkbeg, JUDKIN FITZGERALD, of Lisheen, and UNIACKE of Castle Town and Nova Scotia used the old Geraldine motto "Fortis et Fidelis," or the English equivalent "Faithful and Brave" alone or in addition to "Unicus est." The following notices of five descents in the 13th and 14th centuries were extracted from the records in Bermingham Tower, in the Castle of Dublin, by Sir William Betham, Ulster, and are set forth in the pedigree of the Uniacke family, drawn up by him in 1866. More recent research among the records have further elucidated the facts. BERNARDUS UNAK (or UNACK) of Cork, was living there in 1592, as appears by an entry on the Plea Roll of that year. He appears to have been b. about 1584. His son, Bernardus de Unak, or Bernard Unack, of Youghal, co. Cork, is mentioned in the Plea Roll, 1511, and an Inq. p. m. 1521. He held lands in the Manor of Inchecony, near Youghal, in 1521 from Juliana de Clare, dau. and heiress of Maurice Fitzgerald, 3rd baron of Offaly, as appears by an Inq. p. m., 14 EDWARD II. His son, Philip Unak, of Youghal, was living there 1535. Thomas Unak, or Unack, is mentioned in an Inq. p. m., 25 EDWARD III., as holding land in Greengoghy, in the Manor of Inchecony. He was one of the Justices of Assize at Cork in 1537. His son and heir, Thomas Unack, one of the Justices of Assize in 1538, held four knight's fees from Sir William de Wyndesore, in the Manor of Inchecony, by homage and service, as appears by an entry on the Close Rolls, q. RICHARD II. The Manor of Inchecony was originally Fitzgerald property and passed to the De Clares through the marriage with a Geraldine heiress in 1576. The descent of the family during the 15th century has not been ascertained, but doubtless from the above-mentioned family descended,

THOMAS UNACK, or UNACK, of Ballyhobbert, near Youghal, living in the year 1500, was an Alderman and twice Mayor of Youghal, in 1556 and 1560. By Margaret, his wife, he had two sons,

HEATON-ARMSTRONG OF FARNEY CASTLE AND MOUNT HEATON.

WILLIAM CHARLES HEATON-ARMSTRONG, F.R.A.S. (senior representative of the Armstrongs of Farney Castle and Mount Heaton), Lord of the Manor of Roscrea, King's Co., b. 1 Sept. 1853; m. 7 Sept. 1885, at Veldes, Austria, the Baroness Bertha Maximiliana Zois-Edelstein, only surviving dau. of the 4th Baron Zois-Edelstein, of Austria, and has issue,

1. WILLIAM DUNCAN FRANCIS, b. at Veldes, Austria, 29 Sept. 1886.

2. John Dunanace, b. in Middlesex, 21 Feb. 1868.

1. Bertha Grace, b. in London, 9 Jan. 1893.

Mr. Heaton-Armstrong succeeded, at his father's death, 29 April, 1891, to the representation of the families of Armstrong, of Farney Castle and Mount Heaton, Mealfie, &c.; of MacDonnell, of New Hall; and also of the family of Heaton, of Moorhouse, Yorkshire, whose representative (temp. Queen ELIZABETH) was Bishop of Ely. Mr. Heaton-Armstrong is 19th in descent from King EDWARD I. of England and 14th from King JAMES II. of Scotland (see BURKE's Royal Descents).

Lineage.—The family of ARMSTRONG was in ancient times settled on the Scottish border, and, springing from this part-Scott, several branches at a very early era became located in the northern counties of England and the debatable land. One, established at Corby, in Lincolnshire, had continued there for seven generations; and another at Tyndale, in Northumberland, for nine generations, at the period of the Visitation in 1693. A third scion, Thoroton, in his History of Nottinghamshire (vol. 2, pp. 5-6), mentions as fixed at Thorpe, in that county, as early as the eleventh year of RICHARD II., and gives the pedigree, in an interrupted succession, to the year 1672; and Leland, in the first volume of his Itinerary, speaks of a family of Armstrong settled in Yorkshire, whose representative he calls "a gentleman of many lands." Tradition affirms that the original surname was Fairbairn, corresponding with the Norman "Fortenbras," and that it was changed to Armstrong on the following occasion: "An ancient king of Scotland, having his horse killed under him in battle, was immediately remounted by Fairbairn, his armour-bearer, on his own horse. For this timely assistance the king amply rewarded him with lands on the borders, and to perpetuate the memory of so important a service, as well as the manner in which it was performed (for Fairbairn took the king by the thigh and set him on the saddle), his royal master gave him the appellation of Armstrong, and assigned him for crest, 'An armed hand and arm grasping an armed leg, couped at the thigh, all ppr." The Armstrongs of the border were at the head of a numerous and warlike clan, who, upon all differences that arose between the two crowns, made frequent inroads into the neighbouring counties in Scotland and the north of England, encountering the enemy whenever they met with them, and were occasionally assisted by the other neighbouring clans of their alliance. The most famous chief and leader of these bold and adventurous clansmen was

JOHN ARMSTRONG, the 14th Laird of Giltknock Hall, in the parish of Canaby and county of Eskdale, a strong castle situated on a promontory washed on three sides by the River Esk, which, being steep and rocky, was scarcely accessible, but on the land side, where it was fenced in with a deep ditch. The mansion is still known as the residence of this distinguished chieftain, and the spacious ruins that remain, even to the present day, evince how strong a position it must have been in former times. In this fortress John Armstrong maintained for many years sumptuous state and considerable forces, harassing by continued incursions the neighbouring counties of England. In 1538 he, at the head of his clan, with 3,000 men of horse, burnt Netherby Castle and defeated the English army specially sent under Lord Dacre to capture him. At length his power having grown too great for the subject, he became an object of jealousy to the Scottish King (JAMES V.), who levied an army for the avowed purpose of punishing him, and marched at their head to the parish of Elves. There John was summoned to attend the king on his promise of security, and having accordingly obeyed his summons, in violation of the public faith pledged for his personal safety, as observed by Buchanan, he, with many of his retainers, were, by the king's orders, hanged at Carlingr, two miles to the north of Mossypaul, on the road between Hawick and Langholm, on the 8th June, 1539. After this execution the family dispersed, and some of them settled in different parts of England, the senior branch in Leicestershire. On account of the state of the times the head of the clan fled to Holland, and owing to the destruction of the Dutch churches and burial grounds no absolute detailed pedigrees of Sir Thomas Armstrong, the head of the clan, can be obtained. John Armstrong left a son,

CHRISTOPHER, who s. as Laird of Giltknock, and was living in 1530, and a younger brother,

CHRISTOPHER ARMSTRONG, Laird of Mangerton (a castle standing on the south-west bank of the River Liddle, twenty miles north-east of Carlisle), who had the good fortune to escape the execution of Carlingr. He m. and had two sons, the younger of whom, William, left Scotland some years after the death of Queen ELIZABETH, and seated himself in the county of Fermanagh, where he became the founder of a numerous family, whose branches flourished in those parts. The eldest son of the Laird of Mangerton was father of

ANDREW ARMSTRONG, b. in the castle of Mangerton in 1576, who, having disposed of his patrimony in Scotland to one of his kinsmen, migrated in the commencement of the 17th century to the north of Ireland, and established himself as a gentleman in the co. of Fermanagh. At the breaking out of the rebellion in 1641 he embraced a military life, and served as an officer of horse in the army of CHARLES I. for several years with great reputation. He m. 1st, a lady named Alexander, of Scottish descent, and had by her one son,

1. Andrew, whose male descendants are extinct.

Andrew Armstrong m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of M. Johnston, and had by that lady, with dau.s, five other sons (ancestors of the King's co. families of Armstrong), viz.,

2. Edmund, who m. in the co. of Fermanagh, was Colonel Philip Armstrong, distinguished at the battles of Sedgemoor and Blenheim, was invited to London by his kinsman, Sir Thomas Armstrong, M.P., then Lieut.-Col. of the 3rd troop of Horse Guards.

3. William, Andrew Armstrong m. 3rdly, Mrs. Jane Stephenson, and had two sons,

6. Michael.

7. Archibald, ancestor of ARMSTRONG of Garry Castle.

The head of the clan in King Charles's time was Sir Thomas Armstrong, Knt., M.P., who represented the family interests in Parliament up to his death, and who was acknowledged the head of the clan by all sections of this family.

SIR THOMAS ARMSTRONG, Knt., M.P., b. at Nimegen, in Holland. He obtained considerable grants of land in Ireland, among others the lands of Straffan, co. Kildare, and house property in the cities of Waterford, Limerick, and Leicester. He had been a great sufferer in the royal cause, and was very active for CHARLES II. before the Restoration. His enterprising spirit excited the jealousy of Cromwell, who threw him into prison and even threatened his life. He engaged with all the zeal that was natural to him in the service of the Duke of Monmouth. Finding himself obnoxious to the Court, he fled the kingdom and went to Holland, and his flight was soon followed by outlawry. He was sent abroad and sent to London, where he was condemned for the Rye House Plot by Chief Justice Jeffries, and executed on the 20th June, 1684, without a trial, and with peculiar circumstances of rigour. (See State Trials.) He at his death denied having ever had any intention against his Majesty's life. The attainder was subsequently reversed in the Court of King's Bench, 6 WILLIAM III., and by Act of Parliament £5,000 and an annuity of £1,000 a year was granted to Lady Armstrong. Sir Thomas was gentl. man of the horse to King CHARLES II., Capt. of the 1st troop of Royal Horse Guards, commission dated 30 Dec. 1661, and Lieut.-Col. of the 3rd troop of Horse Guards, and served in Parliament for Strafford (1649) and for Leicestershire (1650). He m. Katherine, dau. of James Pollenfen, of Stanstead Mont-Fitchet, co. Essex, and by her had no male issue, but three dau.s, who survived him, viz.,

1. Jane, wife of the distinguished Admiral Mathew.

2. Mary, m. to Mr. Pollenfen, the celebrated lawyer, who defended Lord William Russell in 1683.

3. Catherine, d. unm.

CAPT. WILLIAM ARMSTRONG, only brother to Sir Thomas, and founder of the family in Tipperary, went over to Ireland in 1666, and settled shortly after the battle of Worcester in the old castle at Farney Bridge (lease granted by Duke of Ormonde 3 Nov. 1679), near Thurles, where he was followed by his brother's widow, Lady Armstrong (she d. in London in 1693). He obtained a grant under the Act of Settlement of Boherracran and other lands in the county of Limerick, dated 3 March, 1666. William Armstrong, we find, was Capt. of the troop of horse attached to the Tipperary Militia in 1688. He m. Alice, dau. of Sir Thomas Deane, and by her had issue, two sons,

The principal family residence was then changed to Mount Heaton (otherwise called Ballyscannagh), and Farney Castle was subsequently given over to his younger brother John. He served in several parliaments for the boroughs of Kilmallock and Fore, and was made a member of the King's Privy Council in Ireland on 9 Sept. 1780. At one time he raised a troop of horse for the King's service, and maintained them at his own cost, refusing all offers of reward for his services. In consideration of other important services he had done the country he was twice urged by the Irish Government to take a baronetcy, which he declined. It was subsequently arranged that he was to be made a peer, under the title of Baron of Lismacumane, in Ireland, and the patent was lodged at the Hanover Office, when he d. suddenly before the patent had passed the Great Seal, at Mount Heaton, 19 Sept. 1791, aged 59. ARTHUR OF GLANOMERA.

CHARLES WILLIAM AUGUSTUS ARTHUR, of Glano-

mera, co. Clare, b. 24 Sept. 1882; s. his father 1888.

Lineage.—The ARTHURS are stated to have been originally

"Aurthurghs," and to derive their descent from a common ancestor with the O'Herns, viz., Cormac Cas, King of Munster. The name, it is further asserted, was anglicised, in common with many others, on the invasion of Ireland by HENRY II., who is stated to have conferred honours and grants of land on one that name in 1178. In the records of Limerick, the name of ARTHUR frequently occurs from the earliest period down to the time of CHARLES I., when the family estates in the county of Limerick were confiscated by OLIVER

CROMWELL for loyalty to the royal cause. The Arthurs then removed to the co. Clare, and became seated at Glanamera. On the municipal roll of the city of Limerick are given the names of no less than 43 Arthurs as Mayors, &c., of that city. From

John Arthur, who was Mayor of Limerick in 1340 and Sir

Thomas Arthur, also Mayor of the city, we pass to Sir Nicholas

Arthur, Knt. Mayor in 1591, who also represented the city in Parliament. Thomas Arthur was Bishop of Limerick in 1490, and Richard Arthur was Roman Catholic Bishop in 1643. Rev.

Geoffrey Arthur, of the Church of Rome, Treasurer of the cathedral of Limerick, d. 1519, and was buried there, where his monument, with a curious Latin inscription, may still be seen. Edward Arthur

* Mr. Brooke, as the representative of the Grahams, formerly of Rahin, Queen's Co., who were a branch of the Netherby family, was in possession of a massive old ring (stated to have been a royal gift) worn by his lineal ancestor, Sir Richard Grime, and commemorative of an act of extraordinary chivalry at the fight of Aberlow, A.D. 1600. Here it was that Capt. Richard Grime, commanding a band of sixty horse, attacked and "rowed" the whole forces of the Sagan Earl of Desmond, consisting of 600 soldiers. In his third charge Grime penetrated to their camp, seizing their carriages, standards, &c.; but in his fourth assault he charged so desperately that he "scattered their whole battalions," and that with such effect that Stafford says the Earl's forces were utterly broken, and he was brought to "a desperate fortune," and never again could rally to a head, "but got him into Ulster."—See Facina Hibernica, pp. 149, 150.

Lineage.—The family of BURGES derives its name from the Burches Hall Estate, near Northwich, in Cheshire, which, in the reigns of EDWARD I. and II. passed by succession in the female line, from the de Merstons to the de Winningtons, who, in turn, bore the name of de Burches or de Burches, afterwards modernised into Burges, which name abounds around Northwich at this day. A branch of the Burches family settled in the parish of Woodchurch, near Birkenhead, of which successive members of it were Rectors. The supplanting of the orthodox clergy at the time of the Commonwealth appears to have caused another partial migration, this time to Dublin, though the "Black Bartholemew," in 1649, brought the senior branch again to Woodchurch, of which we find Hugh Burches (d. 1644) Rector in 1673. "Mrs. Burches, of Dublin," widow of George Burches, a previous Rector, having (according to the Literary Digest) bought the advowson from the Synod, of Keel, in consequence of an investigation as to title made for the purpose of ousting the covananting intruder.

JOSEPH BURGES, d. 1686, and bapt. next day (for the times were again troublous) at St. Michael's Church, Dublin; m. 1716,

His lineal descendant, JAMES, 6th feudal Baron of Innes, held the appointment of "Esquire" to King James III.; and among the family papers is still preserved a charter of some lands granted to him by that monarch, "for faithful service to us of our beloved Esquire, James Innes of that ilk."

DAUNT OF TRACTON ABBEY.

REV. ACHILLES DAUNT, of Tracton Abbey, co. Cork, M.A. Oxon, Rector of Broome, co. Norfolk, 1892-6, Curate of Wimborne, Dorset, since 1896, b. 1867; r. his father 17 June, 1878; m. 27 July, 1892, Ida, dau. of Godfrey Carey, of Rozel, Guernsey, Bailiff, and has issue, ACHILLES, b. 26 Oct. 1894.

Lineage—Several writers can hardly identify the name of DAUNT with that of DAUNTRIE, which occurs on the roll of Battle Abbey. Glover and others assign to Daunt of Gloucester the family which Gwillim assigns to Dauntre, viz., sa., three beacons with ladders or, the flames ppr. These arms are also appropriated to Daunt of Gloucester, in a very ancient MS. in Ulster's office. SIMON DAUNT, living in co. Gloucester circa 1380, was r. at his decease by his eldest son, NICHOLAS DAUNT, who m. Alice, dau. of Sir John de Tracy, Knt. of Sudeley and Todington, co. Gloucester, ancestor of Lord Sudeley of Todington, and by her had a son, NICHOLAS DAUNT, who was living in 1446. He m. Alice, dau. and co-heiress of Sir Walter Jordan, Knt. of Kamme, co. Dorset, by whom he had issue, Nicholas and JOHN. Of Nicholas we have no further record; the 2nd son,

JOHN DAUNT, m. Anne, dau. of Sir Robert Stawell, Knt. of Cotherston, Somerset, ancestor of the Lords Stawell, of Somerton. Having espoused the Lancastrian side in the wars of the Roses, he was called on by Prince Edward, son of King Henry VI., and Margaret of Anjou, to aid the House of Lancaster in resisting EDWARD IV. The following is a copy of the Prince's letter to John Daunt:—

"Trusty and well-beloved, Wee greet yowe well; acquaint yowe that this day we be arrived at Waymoth in safety, blessed be our Lorde, and at our landing we have knowledge that the King's great rebell Edward, Earl of March, approacheth in armes towards the King's highness; which Edward we propose, with God's grace, to encounter with all haste possible. Wherefore we hartely pray yowe, and in the King's name charge yowe, that yowe incontinent after the sight hereof, come to us wheresoever wee be, with all such fellowship as yowe can make in your most defensible aray, as our trust is that yowe will do.

"Written at Waymoth aforesaid, the xiii day of April, [1417.]

"Moreover we will that yowe charge the Bayliffe of mer vñ Pidon to make all the people there come in their beste aray to us, in all haste, and that the said Bayliffe bring with him the rent for our Lady Day last past, and hee nor the tenants fayle not, as hee intends to have our favour.

"To our trusty and well-beloved John Daunt,"

EDWARD.

Lineage.—This is an ancient Irish sept, whose chieftains formerly ruled over Hy-Regain, a territory comprised in the present Queen's Co. They were of the same race as O'Connor Faighe, O'More, and O'Dempsey, and Irish genealogists derived their descent from Cathair Mor, Monarch of Ireland.

RORY O'DOINN, Chief of Hy-Regain, d. according to the Annals of the Four Masters, A.D. 1437. The son of this chieftain, Lineage.—The pedigree of this family is duly recorded at the Herald's College. From very early times until the close of the fifteenth century EGGS were part-owners of the meane Manor of Edge, in the parish of Malpas, co. Chester. The ancient sub-divisions of the Manor, then called Eghe Magna and Eghe Parva, are described in Domesday. In the time of EDWARD the Confessor the Manor was possessed by Edwin, a Saxon thane, who was the sole proprietor of ten manors, and lord of a moiety of two and of a third of another; of those manors six were within the parish of Malpas. From his manors, Edwin was at the Norman Conquest ejected with the exception of Duckington, Hampton, Larkton, Cholmondeley, and Edge; in the first four of which he maintained a temporary possession as sub-tenant. In Edge he was more fortunate. At Hall Wey, in the Manor of Edge, are still to be seen vestiges of the ancient residence of the family of Edge; the lines of the moat are perfect. One branch of the Egges (Edges) of the parish of Malpas settled at Horton, co. Stafford. The arms of Edge—per fess, sable and gules, an eagle displayed argent—were borne by the Edges of the Manor of Edge at least as early as the time of HENRY III.

The elder son,

RICHARD EVERARD, of Randlestown, s. his father, and m. Elizabeth, dau. of Alexander Plunkett, of Gibbstown. Having contended with Michael Cusack, of Rathaldon, concerning certain lands between Randlestown and Symonstown, A.D. 1590, a Commission was appointed "out of the Queen's Majesty's Exchequer," together with Sir Patrick Barnewall and Gerald Wesley, of Dangan, to act as arbitrators in the settlement of the dispute. He d. 12 Dec. 1575, leaving a son,

Lineage—This family was one of great respectability and opulence in the co. Kerry, possessing property in the neighbourhood of Dingle, the Samphires, Ballybunton, &c., long before the English settlers, under the "Plantation Scheme," established themselves in the locality. The first of whom there is any record was JOHN FULLER, who is mentioned in the "Desmond Survey," A.D. 1583, as possessed of the townland of Bowlerstown (Bally-bowler), and "certain lands in Ballybeg." He mortgaged Bowlerstown to Stephen Rice 1610. According to an Inquisition taken at Killarney, he and Maurice Fuller (probably his son) were seized in fee of the townlands of Ballyrisin or Ballyristeenig and Ballytobin or Ballytoebing, and conveyed them in 1635 to Telge Moriarty.

That John Fuller was a man of mark at this period appears by an Inquisition taken at Killarney 18 Aug. 1635 (Inq. No. 59, CHARLES I., co. Kerry, Chancery, calendar by the Record Commissioners 1818), which found that he held his lands "de Dmo Rege in capite p. service militari," i.e. by Knight's service. He was pardoned, 1st of JAMES I., being then of Keshnane, Barbara Fuller, who m. Richard Atkins, of Firville, was of the same family.

Lindisfarne.—This family, probably of Saxon origin, was settled in early times in Ayrshire, and held lands at Muirkirk, or Muirkirk, in Beth parish. Alan de Foulton, Nicol de Foulton, and Thomas de Foulton, of Ayrshire, signed in 1296, among the Scottish barons and landed proprietors, a Parliamentary roll, acknowledging Edward I. as King Paramount of Scotland, and some of the family are still to be found in their old locality (see FATTERSON'S History of Ayrshire).

On 8 Sept. 1614, when Sir William Wade was Lieut. of the Tower, the Frivy Council directed the Rev. Doctor Fulton to visit the Lady Arabella Stuart, then a prisoner in the Tower for having married William Seymour, afterwards 1st Marquess of Hertford. About this period (1611-4), some members of Dr. Fulton's family went to Ireland, and settled at Lisburn, on the estates recently granted to the Seymours family. William Fulton, probably his son, d. at Kilkenny in 1636, but his grandsons, John and Richard, and their issue or kinsmen are distinguishable at Lisburn in the latter half of the century as landowners, royalists, and episcopallians.

Rev. ROBERT FULTON, M.A. Edin. 1677, took Holy Orders at Cloness in 1683, and sailed in 1689 as Chaplain of H.M.S. Success for Jamaica, where he became Vicar of St. John's, and a landowner. RICHARD FULTON, of Lisburn, is found settled there with a numerous family, and already of mature age when WILLIAM III. was called to the English throne in 1688. When Ulster rose under its local nobility and gentry in response to that event, four regiments of infantry were raised in Antrim, four in Down, besides one in Lisburn, and twelve troops of horse in the two counties. Richard Fulton becoming a Capt. in the Horse. To some incident in his career at this juncture, tradition ascribes the crest borne by the Fultons of Lisburn, a cubit arm grasping a broken javelin, with the motto, "Viv' et virtute." On the restoration of peace, Richard retired to the family place, Belisle, and d. 1731.

In this document he is described as Capt. Jasper Grant, of the City of Waterford. Now it appears from Smith's and Ryland's Histories of Waterford, that a family of Grants were from an early period residents of the city and neighbourhood of Waterford, and it is not at all improbable that this old family Capt. Jasper Grant was a descendant, and was enabled to purchase back his family inheritance, and became as it were a re-founder of his race. Capt. Jasper Grant, R.N., of Grantstown, m. some time about 1667, Julian Hely, of Kinsale, sister of Francis Hely, afterwards of the City of Cork, and had a son,
